

“Books are only one type of receptacle where we store a lot of things we are afraid we might forget. There is nothing magical in them at all. The magic is only in what books say, how they stitched the patches of the universe together into one garment for us.”

An aerial photograph of a city, likely Jelgava, Latvia. The image shows a wide river flowing through the city, with a large bridge crossing it. The city is densely packed with buildings, mostly multi-story residential or institutional structures. There are green spaces and trees interspersed among the buildings. The sky is clear and blue.

Library within a city. Story of experience.

2015

Exhibitions are not only about books,
they represent the era – how people,
city and symbols are changing.

Family days in the library

The best present you can give to your children is your time!

The beginning of the new school year in Jelgava

In the library tent:

- Fun and creative workshops for children
- Competitions
- And over everything: happiness about children that are eager to learn

The transformation of the library in the metal festival

- Book exchange point
- Each book is in some way related to metal, you just have to notice it
- Take a look inside the extraordinary world of books

Library-boat in the waters of Lielupe

The unified team of readers and librarians in the annual milk pack boat race.

This year we received the choice award from the restaurant "Chocolate & Pepper"!

Poetry days in Jelgava

We want to create new space for poetry within a city, so this variety would be felt with every cell of your body!

To successfully promote a library within the environment of a city you need the following:

- A well prepared plan and defined goals
- Active and knowledgeable staff members
- Publicity - local newspapers, radio, social networks
- Friends and cooperation partners
- Financial aid
